J. P. ATKIN

It is a Touching Sight to Watch the Feet Feed His Pets in a Public Garden—A Man Who is Loved by All and is "Dear Master" to the Students.

Francis Coppes, the author of "For the King," has a great many friends in Reno, but none of them is more devoted than the little birds that live in the Jardin du Luxembourg. They know him as soon as they see him come in at one of the wide gates, his shoulders drooping, his head hanging forward, his face pale from ill health. They know in just which one of his pockets he carries the big piece of bread which he is going to divide into crumbs for their benefit, and they probably say in their own special language:

"Ah, here is Friend Coppes, bless him!"

They are not the only ones that know what Coppes has in his pocket. All the Latin Quarter people who come and go through that corner of the Luxembourg garden which faces the Odéon know that the gentle author rarely passes a day in his devotion to the birds. And when he appears with a peculiar swollen appearance about one of his pockets they draw quietly off to a respectful distance to watch.

As soon as the circle of spectators—workmen in blue blouses, students in corduroy and blanch blouses, muscades with bareheaded children—as soon as these elements, which might possibly be disturbing, have taken themselves far enough out of the way, the birds close in around the poet until sometimes a hundred of them will be fluttering about his head or creeping about his feet. Then he takes out his piece of bread, and crumbing off one corner tosses a morsel up in the air. Instantly there is a flutter of wings, and two or three of the birds dart upward, and the most fortunate one catches the crumb in its flight and settles down again to his place in the flock.

One crumb after another is thrown out in this direction and that, and occasionally a few are scattered on the ground, so that the adventurous and peckish spirits may have their share. Finally a good fat crumb is pinched off, but not thrown. It is held invitingly between the thumb and finger, while the poet looks at his birds as much as to say:

"Come, come. You know your friend Coppes. Give me a proof of your affection, as I am giving you a proof of mine."

There is a great flutter then among the birds, a great cocking of pretty heads, much sharp glancing of bright eyes. Finally one particularly brave little creature makes a wide curve to ward the unprovoked crumb, but his courage deserts him on the way, and he backs back to his place without the prize. Coppes rebuffs the crumb a little, so that a tiny morsel of it falls to the ground, where it is quickly picked up. It is as if he said to his small flock:

"No, my little friends, it is a good crumb. Who is your confidence? Have I ever betrayed you?"

As if ashamed of having hesitated so long, a bird makes a dart toward the crumb, and then, poises with fluttering wings above it, picks daintily at the morsel and then bears it away triumphantly in its bill. After that it all goes on as a marriage ball. Two or three birds will be calling from his hand at the same time. They fight on his shoulder, on his arm, on his hat.

The spectators meanwhile are full of breathless interest. A child whose loud cry of delight startled the birds into sudden flight is unconsciously jerked back by his nurse with an emphatic "This-oi." The students talk in an undertone about the dear master, as they call Coppes.

Last winter, when there was an unusual amount of snow in Paris, Coppes was particularly attentive to the wants of his birds, which in their turn were more than ever appreciative of his good offices, for the snow made pretty poor picking for them. And on cold days it was no uncommon sight to see the students rush up to the poet after he had finished his job and run up his coat collar or tighten his muffler or button his overcoat.

"Dear master," they would say affectionately, "you must be more careful of yourself. You know you are not strong, and it is cold, and we need you as much as the birds do."

To the birds and the students he is always "the dear master." It was Coppes who wrote to me the poem for the unveiling of the bust of Henri Mergier in that same Jardin du Luxembourg. Mergier's name is idolized by the whole Latin quarter, and it is doubtful if the students would have permitted any one of whom they did not approve to take part in the ceremonies at the unveiling of his monument.

Coppes is not married, although, in French fashion, he has a friend to whom he makes mysterious references in his writings as one who is dear to him and in whose heart he knows he will leave inconsolable regret when he dies. However that may be, he will be sure of plenty of sincere mourners—the students of the Latin quarter and the birds of the Jardin du Luxembourg.—New York Sun.

Correct—Attest: O. H. MARTIN, D. A. BENDER, A. H. MANNING, Directors.

The New York Tribune, founded by Horace Greeley and now conducted by Whitelaw Reid, the son-in-law of D. O. Mills, who made millions in Nevada and is now one of the most ultra of gold men, invites the silver men to leave the Republican party and in the event that they do not leave recommends that they be forcibly ejected. It says in its issue of January 22d "it is devoutly to be hoped that they will take that step without delay. They have been called Republicans, it is true, and have sought and obtained conspicuous places as Republicans, and it would be much to their credit and to the good of the country if they would cease to profess any attachment to Republican principles whenever there is office or influence to be secured by it. The Republican party would be much stronger without such deceptive support."

The Tribune contends that the idea that the result of the Presidential election may depend upon the action of silver men or silver States is not sustained by any facts within the range of human observation. "Complete separation of the silver men from the Republican party would only strengthen that party enormously in all Eastern and Central States." As the Tribune argues, and no doubt it is right on that point, however much it may err on others, no silver man can be a Republican. If he is for silver he is not a Republican, and if he is a Republican he is not for silver.

As some of the few Republicans left in Nevada have been led to believe that the party favored silver and remained with it on that account they should now leave it and save the Tribune the trouble of using violence to drive them out. The party does not want silver men in it, and to tell the square, honest truth only very few silver men remain members of it.

FOLLOW HIS EXAMPLE.

Hon. H. F. Bartine was killed to make a silver speech in Lansing, Mich., on Wednesday night. Our Congressman is walking to the front in the East, and well he may, for he is the best posted man on the Silver question in the United States.

The above is from the White Pine News, a paper published in a county abounding in silver mines, all of which are now closed, and yet for some unaccountable cause advocates the success of a party that is opposed to silver remonetization. Now, in the name of common sense, why does not the News follow Mr. Bartine to the front and right out of the gold party? He was with Senator Jones and others a member of the Committee on Resolutions at the Washington Silver Convention last week. He has severed all political connection with his former Wall-street associates and is now battling for the cause of free coinage and humanity. The News says he is one of the best informed men on the silver question in the country, and it should follow his example and leave the party, which Senator Jones told us two years ago is unalterably opposed to the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 or at all. Why should the News or any other paper published in Nevada attempt to deceive its readers with the delusive idea that the Republican party favors free coinage? The News in common with every person of ordinary intelligence, knows that it does not. If it is in doubt regarding the matter it should look at the platforms of the party in every State east of the Rocky Mountains and read the speeches of Sherman, Hoar and other recognized leaders of the party in Congress and be convinced.

MORTON'S BOOM.

Governor Morton's boom for President has been lamed. The Republican State Central Committee of New York has sent the JOURNAL a pamphlet made up of extracts from the leading Republican newspapers endorsing Governor Morton's nomination for President by the State convention of New York. A note from C. W. Hackett, Chairman of the New York Republican State Committee, invites the JOURNAL to make extracts from the pamphlet for publication. As space will not permit that let it suffice to say that he is, according to the papers, the only choice of the New York Republicans; that he is what they call "sound" on the money question, that is unequivocally in favor of the gold standard; that he is a dozen years younger than Gladstone; that he has the 72 votes of New York at his back, and that he will go into the National Convention with 292 votes and stay in until he has a majority.

Mr. Morton is the ideal candidate of the Republicans. He is opposed to the silver craze, in favor of gold only a wealthy banker connected with New York and London houses and amply able to open not only one, but a dozen "barrels" to secure his election. He will in addition, if nominated, have the cordial support of the gold trust, which means two or three millions for campaign purposes, and in these times, when gold has appreciated and everything else, including votes, depreciated, the expenditure of that amount in a campaign would make money more plentiful than a bond issue of $100,000,000 and might elect Governor Morton.

The new Morgan syndicate has assured the Secretary of the Treasury of its intention to make the $100,000,000 bond loan a success and will bid to take the whole issue or a part of it.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senator Tillman's Maiden Speech Paralyzes the Gold Men.

WASHINGTON, January 20.—The Senate resolution as to Debs was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Tillman made a speech on the pending Silver Bond bill. The galleries were filled and the Senator received close attention. All the talk about sound money and maintaining the credit of the United States was part of a "damnable scheme of robbery," having for its object the utter destruction of silver as money, the increase of the public debt and the surrender to the corporations of the power to issue paper money. He denounced Carlisle as a Judas and Cleveland as a usurper and the most gigantic failure who ever occupied the White House.

The House adjourned early to-day after ineffectual efforts to pass bills to donate condemned cannon and relax the present pension laws.

A Family Drowned.

PORT WORTH, Tex., January 20.—News was received here this morning of the drowning of an entire family in Prairie Dog Fork of the Red river in Randall county. Joe Wicker, wife and two children attempted to ford the stream in a covered wagon, and the horses slipped. The father attempted to swim ashore with one child on his back, but he sank to the bottom and both he and the child were drowned. The mother and the other child remained in the wagon until it was overturned, and both were also drowned.

Another family, in a second wagon, turned back in time to save themselves, but could give no assistance to the Wickers.

Killed by Footpads.

WEBSTER GROVE, Mo., January 20.—Bertram A. Atwater, a well-known artist of Chicago, was shot and killed last night by highwaymen. He arrived on the train from St. Louis at 8 o'clock and employed a young man to carry his valise. Two men stopped him on the way, presented pistols and ordered him to hold up his hands. Instead of obeying the order Mr. Atwater, who had his pistol in his hand, fired a shot at one of the men. The highwaymen fired several shots and Atwater fell dead upon the sidewalk.

Against the Funding Bill.

WASHINGTON, January 20.—Two members of the California Congressional delegation, Bowers and Barham, addressed the House Committee on Pacific railroads to-day in opposition to any funding bill for the Pacific railroad debts. They recommended that the Government should proceed to foreclose upon the railroads when default is made in the payment of the obligations, and they also denounced the methods by which Huntington and his associates managed the property.

In Favor of Cuba.

WASHINGTON, January 20.—The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations has agreed to report the resolution on the Cuban question. The resolution does not go so far as to recommend recognition, but it is more emphatic than the extension of sympathy, requesting the President to use the good offices of this Government to the end that Spain shall be requested to accord to the armies with which it is engaged in war the rights of belligerents as the same are recognized under the law of nations.

Poisonous Sausage.

GREENSBURG, Pa., January 20.—Last night Joseph St. Clair of New Florence, bought 5 cents worth of Bologna which he divided among six members of his family. Shortly after partaking all were taken violently ill and a physician was summoned, who after great effort succeeded in saving all but a 3-year-old boy, who died in great agony. Neither of the family ate an ounce of meat.

Commander-in-Chief Walker of the G. A. R., on being informed that the railroads would not grant the desired 30 days' extension on the G. A. R. encampment tickets, said that lets St. Paul out, and unless the extension is granted there will be no G. A. R. encampment this year.

William Stern and two partners were preparing to blast in the Hite mine, about 25 miles from Mariposa. They went to another part of the mine where powder was kept to prepare cartridges. One man left, leaving Stern and the other preparing cartridges. An explosion occurred, killing Stern and his partner and crippling the man who had left them. One hundred pounds of giant powder exploded.

India Rubber Tree Fruit.

The fruit of the india rubber tree is somewhat similar to that of the Ricinus communis, the castor oil plant, though somewhat larger. The seeds have a not disagreeable taste and yield a purplish oil. It is a fairly good substitute for linseed oil, though it dries less rapidly. Mixed with copal blue and turpentine, it makes a good varnish. The oil may be also used in the manufacture of soaps and lithographic inks. The seeds are somewhat like tiny chestnuts, although darker in color. The Indian girls are fond of wearing bracelets and necklets made of them.

The Egyptian reed which was used for making the pens found in Egyptian tombs is a hard variety, growing to about the diameter of an ordinary goose quill. Pens made from it are said to last for a day or two and do excellent work.

He Won His Bet.

One must take the word of an archdeacon, or I should be inclined to request further particulars in the case of the patron whom Archdeacon Wilson, mentioned at the conference at Carmel the other day. A certain living—so said the archdeacon—had fallen vacant by death. The patron summoned to him his legal adviser, who explained that the presentation must be entirely to the patron. "But," added the lawyer, "I will let you $1,000 that you do not get any son-in-law." Curiously enough, the son-in-law was the lucky man—London Realm.

No Danger.

"My dear," said young Mrs. McFlim to her husband, "I do wish you would not go about the house in your old boots. People will think your father is a poor man." "But when they know his name," said Mr. McFlim, "they will know his boots."—Free Press.

The Salt Lake Tribune is very much dissatisfied at the nomination of Arthur Brown for United States Senator from Utah. It says "it was unexpected and will strike the people as something in the nature of a trick and bad faith." It appears that the Tribune expected Judge Goodwin would be chosen for Senator, but his peculiarities are known in Utah as well as in Nevada.

When Baby was born, she gave her Castoria. When she was a child, she used Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

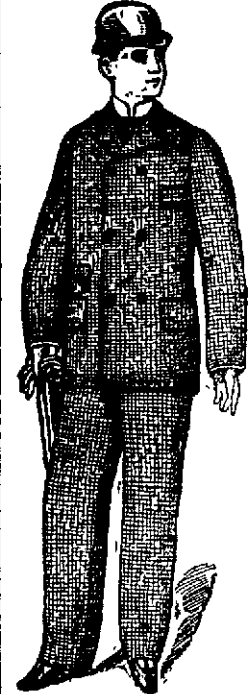

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

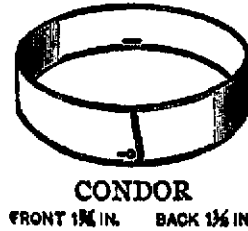

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

An Illustrious Popul.

It was in 1859, when he was embas-sador at St. Petersburg, that Prince Bismarck studied Russian. The suspicious ex-chancellor, who once declared that blotting paper was "an invention of the enemy," wished to dispense with interpreters. He engaged a young law student to give him lessons. M. Alexeeff has lately furnished some particulars of his former pupil.

The pronunciation of certain syllables was a great difficulty, and Bismarck got out of temper more than once, but he finally mastered the language well enough for his purpose, and then dispatched the remuneration which had been agreed upon.

Bismarck carefully kept his knowledge of Russian a secret from the court, with the result that he occasionally gleaned information not intended for him, but on one occasion the czar, who was talking in Russian to Prince Gort-schakoff, noticed that the ambassador was looking very fixedly at him, and at once guessed the truth. He asked Bismarck, point blank, if he understood Russian, and the "man of blood and iron" confessed, much annoyed at having been found out.—Pearson's Weekly.

How She Got the News.

Two Louisville women who are "great friends," as the phrase goes, from one cause or another had not met for several weeks, though living only a few squares apart. The other night one dame went down to visit the other one and said on entering the house:

"Margaret, I came down to visit you because I heard you were sick."

"Well," answered Margaret, who seemed a trifle out of sorts, "you took your time about it. I have been sick a week."

"Yes," Deborah replied, "but I could not come sooner because you took such a roundabout way of letting me know you were sick."

"Roundabout way? I don't remember saying you any word at all. How did you hear?"

"Well, you wrote the news to your daughter Alice in Milwaukee; she wrote to my daughter Mary in New Orleans; Mary mentioned it when she wrote to me, and that is how I happened to come over."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Artificial Scenting of Flowers.

Flowers that have lost something of their perfume are now scented artificially by watering them with an alcoholic solution of essence, using a little glycerin to fix the odor. Thus, for violets, the liquid is composed of 100 grains of alcohol and 10 grains of essence of violet. In many places, white scented violets are comparatively rare, the common kinds grow wild in great profusion. These are now brought up in large quantities, scented artificially and put into the market in advantageous competition with the perfumed violets grown by the horticulturists. Out flowers which have withered from a time or transportation are revived by being plunged into a weak solution of sal ammoniac. Flowers which have little or no scent are also perfumed for sale by being put into a box with ice and then saturated with a current of carbonic acid charged with perfume.—San Francisco Public Opinion.

Menstrual Christianity.

The Westminster Budget tells a characteristic story of the late Rev. J. C.
Mackenzie of London. Many years ago, after delivering a lecture in a village near Sunderland, he was returning to his host's house along a lonely road, when he was accosted by a robber. The latter was a believer in the right of might and requested Mr. Mackenzie to turn out all the cash he had got. "Well, my dear man," replied Mr. Mackenzie,
"you know I am big enough to thrash you. If it's money you want, I'll give you half a crown." The robber would not accept this very charitable offer.
Mr. Mackenzie "doffed" his coat and gave him what the man is now pleased to call "a dashed good hiding." That thrashing did the man a great service, for he afterward left the paths of vice and became one of Mr. Mackenzie's many converts.

Frog Egg Curiosities.

Frogs' eggs are laid before they really become eggs in the true sense of that word. They are always laid under water, and when first deposited are covered with a sort of envelope in the shape of a thin membrane. In this shape they are very small, but as soon as they come in contact with the water they rapidly absorb that element, and in so doing go through a queer transformation. The thin membrane containing the little seedlike eggs is quickly changed into great lumps of a clear jellylike substance, each section joined to the other, the whole forming a string from a few inches to several feet in length. On the middle of each of these lumps of jelly the eggs come to perfection, and in due course of time add their quota to the frog population of the world.—St. Louis Remitelle.

King Alphonso's Test.

Alphonso, king of Aragon, was one day examining the "different articles in his jeweler's shop in company with many ladies of his court. He had scarcely left the house when the jeweler mis-ed a diamond of great value and ran after him, complaining of the theft. The king, not willing publicly to disgrace any of his attendants, commanded a large basin full of sand to be brought him, into which he directed each person to put in the hand clinched and to draw it out flat. By this means the diamond was left in the sand, unknown by whom.—Household Words.

An old man and his wife were last summer sailing on a steamer between Blackpool and the Isle of Man. As the sea was rather rough and the old woman unaccustomed to sailing she said to her husband:

"Oh, John, this ship is going down."

"Well, never mind," said her husband. "It isn't ours."—London Fun.

San Salvador.

San Salvador is built on a volcano. It has been three times destroyed by an earthquake, but the people are becoming accustomed to such occurrences. Earthquakes are pretty frequent, and while one is naturally very nervous there is really little danger to life. The shocks have been known to come as frequently as 80 times in an hour.

POOR DIGESTION leads to
